AMONG THE UNITED STATES’ ELITE RESEARCH UNIVERSITIES

UT’s Carnegie Classification
Doctoral Universities: Highest Research Activity

The university co-manages the world-famous Oak Ridge National Laboratory (ORNL). Established in 1943 as part of the Manhattan Project, ORNL is the US Department of Energy’s largest science and energy laboratory with a total budget of $1.4 billion.

UT has five joint institutes with ORNL, and we have 15 joint UT-ORNL Governor’s Chairs—top researchers who broaden and enhance our research partnership in the areas of advanced manufacturing, advanced materials, biological sciences, energy sciences, nuclear security, and urban design.

UT researcher Robert Grzywacz was involved in discovering a new element—named TENNESSINE after our state—that now appears on the periodic table. Grzywacz, who is director of a UT-ORNL joint institute and a physics professor, helped develop a process to measure the decay of nuclear materials that helped prove the element’s existence.

OPENING CAREER DOORS FOR OUR STUDENTS

We provide our students with opportunities to work on research in some of the best facilities in the country alongside some of the smartest minds.

UT’s programs emphasize learning through experience, encourage global perspectives, and foster our students’ leadership potential.

Because our area is home to major research institutions and national and international corporations, we provide our students with access to world-class internship and career opportunities.

UT’s 245,000 alumni have distinguished themselves in their careers and in their service to others. This global alumni network opens doors for both UT students looking for their first internships and graduates progressing in their careers.
